THE UPS AND DOWNS OF COMMISSIONER POLLARD.

CHAPTER X.

TREATS OF A STORY OF A BIRD, SUPPER WITH A PRESBYTERIAN PARSON, AND OF A PUBLICAN AND HIS PUB.

The Temperance Hall, Dunedin, on the second night of the Army's appearance, was packed out with people. On Tuesday it was the same, and on Wednesday night the crowds were so enormous that Capt. Pollard lost—if he may be said to have entertained any—the last shreds of anxiety as to the future.

He foresaw the trend of things. With twenty, thirty and forty men and women night after night at the penthouse room seeking the salvation of God, and an income running up to an average of £30 per week, he decided, wisely, we think—that that "tide in the affairs of men, which, taken at the flood, leads on to fortune," had set in. He determined to pioneer the portion of the Island south of Dunedin. He struck for Invercargill, a town largely comprised of hardy men and women from the hills and glens of Scotland.

With becoming deference the intrepid pioneer, after making a hurried survey of the town, presented his card to the leading Presbyterian minister. "I have deemed it my duty, in view of the great blessing which the Lord is giving the Salvation Army in Dunedin, to visit your town and enquire whether there exists any need for our beginning work in it, and it seemed to me the proper thing to call upon you, the first minister of the place."

Taking Tea with the Parson.

The frankness and courage of the young man (remember that Capt. Pollard is only twenty years of age) struck a chord of sympathy in the minister's heart, and he invited him to tea.

Capt. Pollard heartily accepted the invitation. Before this hospitality had been shared, however, the Scottish divine ventured to suggest an extension of it.

"I should be glad if you would remain with us to supper, Capt. Pollard; your story of the Army's work and the explanations as to its methods and style are so interesting."

Pollard accepted the invitation.

At the supper table the Presbyterian minister showed every sign of friendliness towards the Captain's object, and, with characteristic courage, proposed to our worthy leader that the best way to test the feeling of the community would be by giving a lecture on "What is the Salvation Army?" "I will gladly accept you the use of my church to-morrow night for the purpose, to preside at the lecture," the good minister said.

G. A. P., Lecturer.

Now, lecturing was not an art that Capt. Pollard had studied at all, and was one of the things which had not entered into his calculation. He had assumed the possibility of being attacked by publicans and sinners, thrown into prison and all manner of oppositions. He had also calculated, as we already know, that God would honour his consecration, and the Ping which he was commissioned to plant in the colony of New Zealand; but, lecturing—well, he would sooner have faced, single-handed, a pack of howling rowdies in the old Kent Road than gone through what meant to him, then, the ordeal of attempting to philosophize upon the movement. Nevertheless, he consented.

Next morning both he and the minister were up betimes, the latter to advertise and announce his lecture, and Pollard to continue scouting the town.

In the course of his peregrinations, the usual good fortune that attended his efforts did not fail him. He was walked up to an old disused theatre attached to a public-house, and, on enquiry, he found both belonged to a Yorkshireman. Memories of the Rosemary Hall at Peckham arose before him, and he determined to have it. The proprietor and publican was not exactly in that condition favorable to the speedy completion of a settlement; that is to say, he was more drunk than sober.

But Pollard, who had succeeded in making himself agreeable to a person, felt it equally easy to be at home with a publican. A bargain was struck at £150 per annum, and when at night the youthful pioneer rose to fulfil the curious announcement and encountered the keen eyes of a crowded church, he knew that he was master of the situation.

They listened with respect and even sympathy, to his account of the Army's aims, and when the lecturer stated—in his peroration—that there would be a collection to start the work in Invercargill, and that an old theatre had that day been leased from a publican, Invercargill received its first lesson upon the aggressiveness of the Salvation Army.

Capt. Pollard's First Convert.

We may as well give here the sequel to this twenty-four hours' work. The theatre was opened. Among the first converts was the proprietor and publican, when Commissioner Pollard re-visited the town late winter, in his capacity as the General's Secretary and representative of I. I. Q., he felt rather proud when the moment came for saying, "General, allow me to introduce you to the Treasurer of our Invercargill corps. He was among our first converts; and instead of the old theatre, which was destroyed by fire shortly after our lease of it ran out, there stands on the same site a substantial Salvation Army Citadel." What the General said is not recorded, but one statement we are sure he would support—"The day of miracles is not past."

Of course, this expedition to Invercargill was risky. The work in Dunedin required the presence of a strong leader, and, although we have no desire to minimise the services of the paper-hanger, his wife, and the black sailor, they were practically ignorant of the methods and movements of the Salvation Army. Every hour's fighting was educating them; but with a chorus such as "We're bound for the land of the pure and the holy" comes to be sung two hundred times in the course of forty-eight hours, it gets just a trifle monotonous.

Rules and Regulations as to Pollard.

Capt. Pollard understood all this; but then, he knew the value of making the most of an opportunity, and he dare not lose it. He took every possible precaution, then left the responsibility to him. Who knew, and he believed, approved his motives. We say that he took every precaution to prevent any hindrance. One of these was the preparation of what is now a historic document—"I shall be away from Dunedin," he said to his colleague on the morning of his departure, "so many days. Here is a list of things you have got to do in my absence. I have worked at it nearly all night. It tells you when you have to get up in the morning, what Scriptures to read and prayers, the new choruses you have to learn during the day, the hours to be spent in visiting, how to visit, how and where to arrange your open-air, the songs you have to give out for each meeting, with the lesson, and all about how to collect and count, keep and spend the money, and the accounts you have to pay."

This armed, the Captain's assistant vowed he "would not let the concern down—not if hard work and carrying out your orders, sir, will do it."

"The history of this brief—written, by the way, on foolscap—would form a chapter by itself. Wherever he went, the brief went. Walking the streets, in his quarters, visiting, holding meetings, the big bundle of foolscap was always noticeable. The regular frequenters of the meetings noticed the bulky article in his pocket on the platform, and speculated as to his reason for his consulting the same when his presence of mind did not happen to be distinguished by brilliancy; but little did they imagine that the parchment foreshadowed and testified regulations which have largely welded and federated the Army in the colonies of Australasia in a unity which is at once a joy and inspiration to Salvationists throughout the world.

Thoughts on Prayer.

Prayer is the slender nerve that moves the muscles of Omnipotence.—Martin Tupper.

Prayer is the cable, at whose end appears The anchor hope, we'er slip'd but in our fears. —Quarles.

Prayer is a shield to the soul, a sacrifice to God, and a scourge to Satan.—Bunyan.

Prayer is a study of truth—a sally of the soul into the unfound infinite.—Emerson.

Prayer is a powerful thing, for God has bound and tied Himself therein.—Luther.

A family without prayer is like a house without a roof; it has no protection.—Hay.

Prayer is not conquering God's reluctance, but taking hold of God's willingness.—Phillips Brooks.

Prayer is the wing wherewith the soul flies to heaven; and meditation the eye with which we see God.—St. Ambrose.

Earth's truest noblemen are those whose every action is prompted by pure motives, and whose lives are permeated with prayer.—E. A. Wyne.

He who is too busy to find time for prayer is busier than God asks him to be, and the fruit of such labor is a poison unto death. —

Prayer and thanks are like the double motion of the lungs; the air that is sucked in by prayer is breathed forth again by thanks.—Goodwin.

Prayer is a turning of one's soul in heroic reverence, in infinite desire and endeavor towards the Highest, the All-excellent Supreme.—Carlyle.

Watching without prayer were but an impious homage to ourselves. Prayer without watching were but an impious and absurd homage to God.—Foster.

Prayer is the aspiration of our poor, struggling, heavy-laden soul towards its eternal Father, and, with or without words, ought not to become impossible, nor need it ever. Royal sons and subjects can approach the King's throne who have no "request" to make there except that they may continue loyal.—Carlyle.

FROM THE EDITOR'S DESK.

The Life of John Read.

Mrs. Read's well-written book is meeting with a very good sale. Orders have come in from parts of Canada and Newfoundland, and from many parts of the United States for it, and if you have not read it yet, you should buy a copy at once. You will find it an excellent investment.

Do You Want a Boy?

1.—A home is wanted for a bright, healthy, sturdy little boy of five years. Hair dark, eyes blue. Further information may be obtained from Adjt. Jordan, 40 Hollis Street, Halifax, N. S.

2.—A mother little over two years and five months is waiting adoption. He has brown eyes and red hair. Apply to Staff-Capt. Covau, Riverview Ave., London, Ont.

3.—A third home is wanted for a blind boy, a bright little fellow with a sweet disposition, and two years of age. A good opportunity for some Christian home to merit the commendation, "Inasmuch as ye did it to one of these," Apply to Mrs. Read, S. A. Temple.

A Rhodes Anecdote.

Appropos the South African crisis, an excellent story is being told by a Salvation Army officer returned from there. When General Booth was conversing with Mr. Rhodes one day, he suddenly asked him, in a manner characteristic of the Army, "How is it with you?" "You know," replied quietly, "It's well enough with my son, but you're the first person I've come in contact with for a long time who credited me with having one."

Warning.

The Rev. James G. Evans, B.A., M.D., requests us to insert the following warning:

"Officers are hereby warned of an impostor impersonating me at different places, and has heard of in St. Thomas, Ont.

"He uses my name with exact initials, and professes to be a Medical Missionary from the Holy Land, and is busy by the illegal practice of medicine in Canada, secure money for his supposed work in the foreign field. My permanent address is 50 Princess St., Kingston, Ont., and others can easily protect themselves and the Lord. He is writing me or writing me here before being worked by this sharper."

Capt. Pitcher's Bereavement.

Capt. Pitcher, of Newfoundland, is mourning the loss of his father, who for over 30 years has been a C. of E. school teacher. Ill-health had caused him to resign his position about a year ago. Capt. Pitcher visited his father about a month before his death, when the Captain pleaded with him to give his heart to God. Although the parent did not get converted then, he did so shortly after that. Mr. Pitcher died on August 13th. Before passing away he gave the following words through the valley of the shadow of death, "I will fear no evil." The Captain has our sympathy and prayers.

Death Stays the Hand of the Gambler.

A rather curious event recently occurred in Kitchener. A middle-aged man entered the gambling saloon one evening, and sat down at a roulette table. He placed a ducat on one of the numbers and promptly began to meditate on his chances of winning. He won, but made no effort to gather in his prize. The wheel was spun again, and again he won. As his second bet was based on his first winnings one of the assistants touched him on the shoulder and told him to take his money off the board. The individual remained immovable, for it turned out that he was dead. The man in charge of the table then raked up the grid, saying that it belonged to the bank as no engagement could possibly have been entered into with a corpse. The heirs of the dead man are now suing the proprietors of the gambling establishment to test the soundness of this reasoning.

AND PRESENT STATE OF THE CORPS AND INSTITUTIONS.

OW do you like Canada?"

This was the question I asked Brigadier Gaskin, while he was seated in his senate chamber, for the Brigadier has two offices in the Temple.

One, the senate chamber, is on the second floor upstairs, in the corner, securely hedged in by a four-fold guard of assistants—this is the office of Brigadier Gaskin, the General Secretary to the Commissioner at Territorial Headquarters;—the other, the lower house, is on the street level, and is commonly known as C. O. P. office—this is the office of Brigadier Gaskin, the Provincial Officer of the Central Ontario Province. From this our leaders will learn what most of them already know, that Brigadier Gaskin holds two positions. But it is the Provincial Secretary I am interviewing and of whom I wish to talk to-day.

"Like Canada? Immensely," retorted quickly the Brigadier. "My health is fair, digestion good, climate agreeable, and I am in love with its people."

THE P. O.'S CAREER.

Brigadier Gaskin was converted in the Salvation Army's Birth-land, England, and entered the Training Home in London, on July 20th, 1885, that is over fourteen years ago. As Captain he held nine different Field appointments, and in April, 1888, he was promoted to Ensign, which rank was about that time introduced in the Salvation Army. The following month he was appointed to fill the position of Junior Soldier District Officer for Manchester, and after that held the same position in Birmingham. The upward move of Albert Gaskin can further be traced in his subsequent appointments as J. S. Secretary for Manchester Division and as Senior Secretary for Sheffield Division. From Sheffield he took charge of Stratford Educational Institutions of Toronto.

Training Garrison and Corps, then Campbellford Training Home and Corps, next North London District, and finally, as Staff-Captain, he held the position of Secretary to Colonel Higgins the Chief Secretary to Miss Booth, our present Commissioner, who then had her Headquarters in the Congress Hall, London, Eng. The last appointment of Staff-Captain Gaskin was as Divisional Officer of the Central Division (London) under the Field Commissioner, with whom he came to Canada in July, 1896.

MRS. GASKIN.

The Brigadier's better half came out of Hinkley as an officer in Dec.,

Mrs. Brigadier Gaskin.

5500 copies per week, added about 100 attendants to our open-air and marches per week, and increased our indoor attendance by 250. This latter figure may not seem very large, but in reality the actual increase is much larger, when you can, however, not be shown by our weekly average figures because we have conducted a great number of our meetings during the hot weather altogether in the open-air and no indoor figures are shown for those meetings. But these open-air meetings have done a great deal more erecting and lasting good, by reaching certain people who would not have come inside. Many drum-head conversations have taken place."

"Our Cartridge money," the Brigadier continued, "is nearly ten dollars per week more, and the total income per week has increased about one hundred dollars in the corps of the C. O. P."

"If the income of the corps has increased, then there should be a corresponding increase in the salaries of the Field Officers, which would be very desirable."

"Yes, I am glad to say such increase has been a fact, and the return shows that a weekly average of $35 has been added to the officers' salaries. This is not a great amount, divided between so many, but it is a move in the right direction."

"And what advances have been made in the work among the children?"

"In the first place there has been a great improvement in the system, the quality of leaders and general management of the Juniors' work. This itself cannot be expressed in figures, but we have also recorded statistical advance. 200 Juniors' names have been added to the rolls, the attendance at the Junior meetings has also increased by 300 per week, and 300 new members have been enrolled in the Band of Love. The Young Soldier sales are now 270 better than at the time I assumed charge. I have given you round figures which present our position quicker and in a more comprehensible style. The soldiers of the Province have given every evidence of continual improvement in discipline and spirituality. The fighting quality of our troops is better than ever, and they grasp the idea of the oneness of the whole Army better. The various special efforts of the Territory put forth from time to time have met with decided success. The Harvest Festival, just concluded, shows the gratifying result of having secured $300 over and above the target. Self-Denial will be met in the same spirit of determination and that gives assurance of a great victory in that effort. The Siege has been an excellent success."

ADVANCES.

I now come back to my interview. Of course, the Brigadier considers the Central Ontario Province second to none. When I suggested to him that Nigger had been keeping rather in the rear of the Hustlers' Race, he admitted this humiliating fact, but he stated it was not the fault of the band—whose quality was excellent—but the fodder had been rather slack of recent weeks. I sighed a deep sigh and expressed the hope that Nigger might rise again.

"What definite advances have taken place in the C. O. P. since you took command of it?"

"Well," said the Brigadier, calmly reaching for his statistical book and adding up and averaging the different formidable looking columns of figures. "Since I took charge we have added to our rolls after making up for all losses, 230 soldiers and recruits, increased our War Cry sales by about

Toronto Street, Toronto, with the General Post Office in the Background.

Captain Gammage, North Bay.

Many of our best soldiers were captured during the Siege. And the spiritual tone has been heightened by that united onslaught on Satan's forces."

THE SOCIAL INSTITUTIONS.

The Brigadier had by this time grown so warm that the steam of his convincing figures and facts, as well as the enthusiastic way in which he described the different advances, made it impossible to retain all the lofty sentences, therefore I shall give the following information as best I can put it together, using my notes for stepping stones.

The Women's Social Work, represented in this Province by two Rescue Homes, a Woman's Shelter and a Children's Shelter, is in a lesser manner attached to the Provincial Office than in other Provinces, since the Commissioner's Secretary for Women's Social Work, Brigadier Mrs. Read, has her office in the Temple, and can personally supervise that branch of our Social Work in this Province.

The men's side of Social Work is represented by the Social Farm on Bathurst Street, near Toronto, the Nighthouse (Men's Shelter, Toronto), and the Hamilton Smeiter.

The Industrial Farm has been the anchor to many a human derelict. Stock raising is one of the main features of that institution, although fruit and produce are also raised there. About 300 chickens are at present enjoying life in the S. A. Hennerly. The Piggery is also rather extensive and pays well.

The Toronto Shelter has undergone considerable repairs, and is now in a cleaner and better condition than ever. The Hamilton Shelter meets with the sympathy and support of the citizens and the work is carried on satisfactorily.

THE PROVINCIAL OFFICE.

Major Turner is the Chancellor of the Central Ontario Province. He has recently travelled from the Pacific Province, where he held a similar position. We referred to his career and that of his affectionate wife in our article on the Pacific Province. The Major and Mrs. Turner both have held many Field appointments in the corps of the Central Province.

Insane Asylum, Hamilton, Ont.

Ensign Bale, who married Ensign Nellie Griffith, in May of this year, holds the position of Assistant since that date.

LIGHT AND SHADE.

The strongest and most pleasing feature of the C. O. P. is the faithful, loyal industry of its officers amidst exceptional difficulties, while its weakest feature, according to the Brigadier, is the fact that many of our people are not fully alive to the possibility of the J. S. work. He hopes for a decided improvement in that direction. In a series of officers' councils recently held at Toronto, the Brigadier laid this matter especially before the officers, and there has been a general pledging to give the children's work more and better attention.

THE DISTRICTS.

Toronto District.

The Toronto District, under the direct command of Major Turner, includes the seven city corps, Aurora, Brampton and Newmarket. The city is well officered and our work on a good solid basis. The Army has a very good standing, which may be largely attributed to the personal influence of Miss Booth. Only a few days ago an influential doctor said to the Field Commissioner, "I suppose you know, Miss Booth, that you are a detailed record of the history of the S. A., in "Beautiful Barrie," written by the Secretary of that pioneer corps. Orillia, Stroud, Midland, Collingwood and Collingwood belong to this District. Amidst the rocks and lakes of that region the Salvation Army marches on and souls are won for the Saviour. This District has shown the greatest interest in representing their Province in the War Cry. Besides Barrie, detailed articles have been received from Collingwood and Midland, and may be found in this edition.

Bowmanville District.

Here the fight has been rather stiff for some time. Besides Bowmanville, Oshawa, with its outposts of Courtice and Whitby and a Circle Corps of two Brigades, Brooklin and Pickering, constitute this District. The well-known Ensign Nellie Smith is its energetic commander. Bowmanville is known for its manufacture of Organs and Barrie Jail.

The League of Mercy Sisters hold meetings there.

P'inos, and Oshawa for its Malleable Iron Works, where we hold noon-day meetings occasionally.

Hamilton District.

A recent article in the Cry has described in detail our work in the Ambitious City. We have a very nice property here, comprising a barracks, with large and small hall, Men's Shelter and Officers' Quarters. We have situated here also a Rescue Home for Women and a second corps. St. Catharines, with its famous War Cry Brigade, under Ensign Williams, is forging ahead. Oakville and Dundas are also attached to this District. Adjutant Moore is the District Officer, and is well known as a good organizer and a hard worker.

Lindsay District.

The portly, vigorous Adj. Wiggins is in command of this District, which comprises Fenelon Falls, Lindsay, Oshawa, Kinmount, Cobocook and Uxbridge. The Adj. is an inveterate worker of the old-fashioned Blood-and-Fire stamp. His officers, soldiers and corps in general have made good records under his direction.

Owen Sound District.

Owen Sound District is run direct

Presbyterian Church, Barrie, Ont.

the most popular person in Toronto." Our brave leader has given much of her time and thought to Toronto, and the troops of the Queen City have been inspired by her to more desperate warfare, as well as to more united and harmonious working side by side. Such veterans as Staff-Capt. Archibald, Adj. DesPresay, Ensigns Fox and Wynn, are in charge of the leading city corps.

Bracebridge District.

This District is in command of an old and well-proved officer, Adjutant Searr. She is a thorough, systematic officer, who knows her Bible, preaches the Gospel, and works her people. All her corps, comprising Annie Harbor, Bracebridge, Gravenhurst, Huntsville and Parry Sound, are in good working trim. She is the queen of the Muskoka region, one of the prettiest parts of Ontario.

Barrie District.

Adj. Cameron is in charge of the charming district which has Barrie for its centre. On another page we give from P. H. Q., and is composed of the following corps: Chesley, Meaford, Orangeville, Owen Sound and Shelburne. Orangeville is represented by a separate contribution in this issue. Meaford, the baby corps of the Province, is in a good condition and able to take nourishment. All round the corps have much improved of late in this District. The Feversham Circle Corps, with five Brigades, is under the command of Capt. Slater, and doing well.

Sudbury District.

This section of the C. O. P. was the last part of Ontario opened by the Salvation Army, and includes three corps: Little Current, Sudbury and North Bay. Mining is the principal industry of the two latter towns and the Sudbury officers work two outposts, Stobie and Coppercliff, with great success. The most friendly and generous class of the people among whom the S. A. works is composed of the miners. The officers are never in want, crowds are fair and souls are getting saved. Little Current, under the famous P. O. Thwait, has four outposts and a large soldiers' roll, almost entirely composed of Indians. The work is rolling on.

CONCLUSION.

The general health of the officers is good, although there have been a few serious break-downs. Candidates are applying, and there have been sufficient applications received to keep up the supply of officers required.

For Corps Cadets, the C. O. P. is second in the Territory. The Forms which these Corps Cadets have sent in from time to time are well filled in and intelligently answered.

The Brigadier concluded by saying that he would plan for a deeper spiritual campaign during the winter in every District of the Province, and that he was most anxious that souls should be saved and led on to a higher platform day by day.

VICTORIA, B. C.—Saturday evening a welcome meeting to our new officers, Staff-Capt. Galt, Capt. Meyers and Lieut. Patterson. We were glad to see them and fell in love with them at once. Staff-Capt. Watson, from Seattle, came over to introduce them. Brigadier Howell was not able to come. We were glad to have Staff-Capt. Watson and his violin again. Sunday, good meetings all day. Splendid open-air. Monday a musical meeting. The officers were assisted by Staff-Capt. Watson (who missed the Monday band. The officers prayed he would.) We also had Adj. McGill, from Skagway. He looked splendid. He has come down for his bride. We expect great things next Monday. Staff-Capt. Galt takes well with the Victoria people. Capt. Meyers is known to some of us. Lieut. Patterson is no stranger either. She may become as great a favorite as her brother, Adj. Patterson. was.—M. L.

Central Market, Hamilton, Ont.

Uxbridge H. F. Decorations.

ST. GEORGE'S.—We are having very good meetings. Large crowds. On Tuesday night off to St. David's for an open-air meeting. Band out in full force. Quite a gathering of people to hear us. Thursday night special meeting. Lieut. Hanson came to pay us a visit on Thursday night and remained with us until Sunday night. Everybody glad to see him, as he is an old Bermuda boy. Our band is progressing favorably; what's more, our bandboys can play as well as play and sing.—R. S., C. O.

Our History Class.

CHAPTER XII.

AGE-SILAUS.

After the death of Sostrates, Xenophon went to Sparta, bearing hard feelings against Athens, his native city. At Sparta Agesilaus was King (596 B. C.) and he was as brave as he was just and tolerant. When the Spartans resolved to free the Greek colonies in Asia Minor from the Persian yoke, they sent Agesilaus in command of an army of eight thousand men. The Athenians and other Greek States were asked to also send men, but they all refused to do so. Agesilaus added to his command the six thousand Greeks left in Asia by Xenophon, and after the winter being lost in finding horses and equipment, he advanced into Persian territory and defeated the enemy in various battles. The Persian satrap, Pharnabazus, at last begged for a conference, which was very friendly, but had no definite result upon the expedition. Agesilaus was just mustering all the Greek troops for an advance into the very heart of the Persian Empire, when a message was sent to him to return immediately to Sparta. It appeared that the Persians had become so alarmed at the success of Agesilaus that they sent money to Athens and induced the Athenians and other cities to rise against Spartan supremacy. The Persians knew well that war among the Greeks was the quickest way of checking their onward march and saving their empire. This is exactly the devil's tactics. He is anxious to keep jealousy, envy, distrust, and others of his agents busily employed in avoiding Christian unity, knowing full well that quarrels amongst Christians will prevent, or at least check, the progress of salvation.

Agesilaus returned to Hellespont, fought a great battle near Corintha, in which he was victorious. He was grieved at having to fight his Greek fellowmen, and exclaimed, at seeing the great number of dead Athenians and Corinthians, "O Greece, how many brave men hast thou lost, who might have conquered all Persia! In I fought another battle at Coronia, in which he defeated the Thebans, but himself was badly wounded. He would not allow himself to be carried from the battlefield until he had personally seen every dead and wounded Spartan removed.

At his return to Sparta the citizens were delighted to see that he had not been spoiled by Persian luxury, but lived as plainly as ever.

We must remember here Konon, who had escaped with six Athenian ships from the Spartan navy to the Island of Cyprus. He managed to cause a revolt of Rhodes (another Island) against the Spartans and to make friends with the Persians. The latter helped them with eighty ships, and, in company with Pharnabazus, they entirely defeated the Spartan fleet, which was in command of Agessilaus' brother-in-law, who died like a true Spartan, sword in hand. Konon returned to Athens finally with a fleet and money to re-build the long wall, which had lain in ruins for ten years. Konon was the most popular man for a time, but finally Athens treated him like she did most of her best men, by sending him into exile, where he died.

The final peace was concluded by which Persia kept all Greek colonies in Asia, also Cyprus and another island, while the remaining islands, with the exception of three, which remained bound to Athens, were set free from any power. This was called the peace of Antalcidas, which still left Sparta as the chief power of Greece.

FARGO, N. D.—God is giving us victory. Two souls have been saved, one a backslider. We had a hard struggle for our H. F. target, but we got there. Our trust is in Him.—M. H. S., Reg. Cor.

KENTVILLE.—Harvest Festival target is out of sight. Sixteen dollars over the twenty-four make forty, and Capt. Allen and his worthy assistants have succeeded in raising that amount. God is still showing Himself strong on our behalf.—A. Jess, R. C.

KAMLOOPS.—Had some visiting Salvationists dropped into Kamloops, Sunday and Monday, of the 10th and 11th inst., they could have detected an air of depression among the usually cheery soldiers. There was a sort of a "get your partner for a funeral" look on their faces, caused by the unexpected farewelling of the officers. I need hardly say that Capt. and Lieut. Ziebarth are greatly missed by the townspeople and corps. They picked the corps up at its lowest, when there was only one real active worker, our Sergt.-Major and all-round pro, "the irresistible Bro. Lloyd." Together they have managed, by God's grace, to place the corps in a flourishing condition again, having won souls for Christ, bought a new $20 drum, shot $5 over a $32 H. F. target, and left a line corps of red-hot soldiers in good fighting trim, all in about two months' time. The Town held the farewell service on Sunday morning, and from the smallest tot up, they crowded round their beloved officers. The Captain delivered her farewell address in the evening. The next night, in "the wee sma' hours," a small clique of the faithful few gathered at the railway station, to pay their last tribute of respect to the Captain and her sister. One whole-hearted, wide-armed, and true-hearted man, Bro. Lloyd's six feet of good nature was fitting round like some good fairy, making it pleasant and cheery for everyone. As the final hand-clasp "Good-bye, God bless you, comrades" came, our officers stepped aboard, to Lloyd has the meetings in ex-Jailor new officers came.—Joe Mc

Post Office, Hamilton, Ont.

Orangeville.

THIS pretty little town of some 4,000 inhabitants is situated on the highest point in Ontario, about 49 miles north-west of Toronto. It is a very busy little railroad town, being on the O. P. R. lines running to Owen Sound and Tesswater.

The S. A. corps here is not one of the largest in the Territory, nor yet in the Province, but still it has a few good, faithful old stand-bys to boast of. It is here that you will find Bro. Oliver Carpenter, whose picture will be recognized by many who have fought in the past by his side. During fifteen years he has proved himself a soldier true to his colors, both when the battle has been fierce and when clouds have been black, as well as when the sunshine of success and of victory has shone on every side. To speak for himself, he says:

THREE VIEWS OF ORANGEVILLE, ONT.

"After fifteen years' fighting, through darkness or sunshine, I'm not the least bit tired. God is with me and I mean to go on."

Then, besides our soldiers, we have a good number of real Army friends, tested and tried. Here can be found our old friend, Mrs. Huskison (Lieut. Huskison's mother), who, although well on in years, is a real helper in every good work for the extension of the Master's Kingdom. She has been a real mother to the officers, for which she will be remembered by very many who wish her God's blessing.

Captain Capper, Brooklin.

Bro. McKim, another old friend, who can sit and chat with you about the days of yore, is also one who is always ready to help in every time of need.

At the time of writing the work has taken a move in the right direction: souls are being saved; soldiers are being made, and altogether I believe that as the past has been one of victory and blessing, so will the future of this corps be.

Lieut. Edwards and myself have now faredwell from this field of labor, and the present officers are Capt. Welch and Lieut. Jackson. God bless them. Although in many ways the town is to be admired, yet this is rampant. The town has a strong hold upon it, as well as upon many other fair places, which nothing but hard toil and lots of the grace and power of God can loosen.—J. Capper,

Midland Memoranda.

A Prosperous C. O. P. Corps.

SITUATED on the Midland Harbor is the pretty little town of Midland, with its population of 3,000 people. The chief industries of the place are saw-milling and grain trading. Many large vessels arrive from Duluth, Milwaukee and other ports with great quantities of wheat, oats, etc., for the grain elevators. The iron smelting works too, have done much to bring the town to the front rank. There then are also a flour mill, box factory, woollen mill and brick yard.

Midland boasts of some very fine buildings, and the main street, known as King Street, presents a very lively and business aspect. Among the most important business places are four large dry goods stores, two banks, five groceries, three jewellers, three furniture and undertaking, two butchers, three bakers, and others. There are also two newspapers—Midland Free Press and Argus. The Free Press exchanges for the War Cry weekly. Five hotels also give us a good chance to sell our Cry, and thereby do something for God.

Now we will look and see what religious work is being done in the town. The different denominations are fairly well represented, there being a Presbyterian, Methodist, Baptist, Church of England, and Roman Catholic. The churches add quite a bit to the beauty of the town, as all are very good structures of brick.

Then, almost every night, winter and summer, you can see the Flag with the Fiery Star borne along the streets, and hear the dear old drum as it keeps time to the stirring songs of salvation sung from Blood-washed hearts.

Capt. J. Langtry (Mrs. Major Southall), is remembered as the first officer, she having opened Midland on the 25th of March, 1886. Some of the converts of those early days are still warring a good warfare, among the number being Treas. and Mrs. Dobson, who have been, and still are, such a joy and blessing to all. Also there is Brother and Sister Hewitt, and many others, some in other towns and cities, some in the Heavenly City, but all glad that the dear old Army came their way the news to tell of Christ and His pardoning love.

The Army has some good, staunch friends in Midland, and while the old ship has weathered many an angry gale, and rode on many a heaving billow, yet the Great Captain has piloted her safely through, and many of the salvation crew have stuck to her, and with God's help and sanctified push, have come out victorious, and the look-out for future days is bright.

Capt. McCann and Lieut. Bone are the present officers, and are determined to push the claims of God to their utmost.

MIDLAND.—Since last report our God has helped us, and we have rejoiced over seven souls coming to the Mercy Seat. Good meeting on Thursday night, led by Treas. Dobson and Bro. Smith. All are glad to see Lieut. Wadge, who is home on a short furlough.—J. M. McCann, Capt.

Beautiful Barrie.

BY A SOLDIER.

WHAT is the meaning of this singing on the streets? Has someone lost their reason, or worse, are they under the influence of strong drink? Yes, someone was drunk, but it was with "the new wine of the Kingdom." For some days posters had been up announcing that the Salvation Army would open fire on the town of Barrie on this particular morning, and everyone had formed their own ideas as to what this "opening fire" could mean, but who-over would have thought it would have taken place by two or three of God's children singing the strains of that beautiful chorus:

"We are bound for the land of the pure and the holy,

But such was the case.

It was a beautiful Sabbath morning, about fifteen years ago, when Capt. Madden and Addie, accompanied by Bro. Moses, of Toronto, marched forth in the name of their Master and took their stand at the Five Points. How the people stared as they told in their novel way of the power of God to save all who would come unto Him. It was not long before the town was thoroughly aroused—Christians set on fire, professors brought to see their position before God, and sinners of all kinds brought to the Saviour.

An Unequalled Revival.

Never had there been such a revival in Barrie. People could talk of little else but the S. A. and how it was possible for their converts to know they were saved, but they DID know, and soon their lives bore testimony to the fact. We might mention one or two cases that have come under our notice.

One was a professor of music and organist in one of our churches, who came into our barracks out of sympathy for our work. The power of God took hold of him so that he trembled with conviction, and sobbed his way to the penitent form. There the Lord met him and set his captive soul at liberty. Oh, what a testimony of deliverance he gave then!

Another was a poor widow woman who sat in our hall, and who feared to take the step. At last she ventured and proved for herself that Jesus satisfies the longing soul.

About a week after her conversion, while doing her day's work, she contracted a severe cold, which resulted in death. Her last words were:

"Sweeping through the gates of the New Jerusalem.

Washed in the Blood of the Lamb."

She left a large family, and we could not understand why God took away their only means of support; but the orphans were all adopted into good families, and were far better cared for than they could have been had their mother been spared. Thus we learn another lesson that He doeth all things well.

We have neither time nor space to record all the wonderful trophies of grace, or of the lives and homes made happy.

Who can ever forget those early days—the crowds, the marches, the choruses which thrilled us, when Christians of all denominations extended to us the right hand of fellowship, and, to show their sympathy for our work and their love for God, marched in our ranks?

One Sunday our march was reinforced by the members of the Y. M. C. A., who swelled our numbers to about 250. Oh, such a march, and how our hearts were stirred within us as they sang:

"At the Cross, at the Cross, where I first saw the light,
And the burden of my heart rolled away,

It was there by faith I received my sight,
And now I am happy all the day."

These were the times when young men and women filled with the love of God, left their homes and all they counted dear to go and work for God. Many have left this corps to become officers in the Salvation Army, some of whom have gone to the ends of the earth carrying the "glad tidings of great joy."

A Petition Filled.

It was nothing new in those days to have church members take hold of our meetings, and go in with us heart and hand to get men and women converted; but this unity of spirit was not always to last, for there came a change, and many of those who had taken such an active part left us to ourselves, while our opponents, desirous of hindering us in our onward march, got up a petition in which they asked the Town Council to prohibit our marching. This petition was signed by nearly all the clergy, the Roman Catholic Priest being a notable exception.

Rev. D. D. McLeod,

However the Council did not entertain the idea, as another petition was gotten up by our friends, asking that we be allowed to do as we thought best, so we have been marching ever since without the least interference from the authorities. We might say just here that the officers of justice are very kind to us, ever ready to take our part when we are unlawfully opposed by our enemies. We had some rough times, notwithstanding. Several times have we been attacked in the open-air, our drum head kicked in, stoned and rotten-egged; our meetings disturbed by fighting among the rough element; but still God's work went on, and when Capt. Madden and Addie said good-bye to Barrie, we had a nice little band of Blood-and-Fire soldiers, many of whom are marching in our ranks to-day, while many are marching the streets of the New Jerusalem.

The farewell of our pioneer officers came at last. It was indeed hard to part with them, for we had learned to love them for their work's sake. The Town Hall, which we occupied on this occasion, and which has a seating capacity of eight hundred, was packed to the doors, while scores had to stand. It was a most impressive meeting and much good was the result. At the close we counted 54 at the Mercy Seat.

During the fifteen years that have come and gone we have had many Godly officers, who have not left a stone unturned to promote the glory of God. Among the most revered are Capt. Madden, now in Glory, Capt. Addie, now Brigadier Addie, of U. S. A., Adj. Miller, Adj. McGilvray, Adj. Miller, Adj. Blackburn and Ensign and Mrs. Attwell.

We are now comfortably settled in our new barracks on Collier St., where Adj. Cameron and Capt. Lewis now lead us on to victory. They are real, Godly officers and their influence cannot help but be felt for good in Barrie.

We have some old veterans in our ranks who have borne the burden and heat of the day, and who are still doing their utmost to promote the interest of the Kingdom. Mother Cameron is among the first of our converts, and although she is getting very feeble, never misses a meeting when it is possible for her to attend, and is ever ready to praise God for what He has done for her, and to warn sinners of the wrath to come. Hold on a little longer, mother, the race is almost run, for—

"Not to the strong is the battle,
Nor to the swift is the race;
But to the true and the faithful
Victory is promised through grace."

Then we have Father Myles and Father McCullough, and it always does our hearts good when we see their happy faces. We must also mention our Treasurer, Bro. Stapleton, who has occupied his office for ten years. He is a real Blood-and-Fire soldier and loved by all who know him.

We have some very warm friends in Barrie. Among the clergy we have Rev. D. D. McLeod, of the Presbyterian Church, and Rev. M. L. Pearson, of the Methodist Church. Both of these gentlemen have kindly loaned us their churches on different occasions in which to hold Social Meetings. Some few months ago Brigadier Mrs. Read, Sec. of the Women's Social Work, organized a branch of the League of Mercy in Barrie, putting Secretary Lane in charge. Meetings are conducted every Sunday in the fall, in which our Secretary is earnestly endeavoring, in word and song, to sow the seed of the Kingdom, the Jailer showing her every kindness.

Triumphant Again!

The Harvest Festival returns are now complete, with the exception of the Eastern and Newfoundland Provinces, where the dates have been postponed. The other five Provinces have recorded decided victories. The Pacific Province wires that the target is "all safe," which may mean that it has just been reached or that there is an overplus. The North-West Province sends $5,000, which is $50 over their target; West Ontario reached $2,100, being $100 over the target; the Central Ontario Province had a target of $1,650, but raised $1,870; while East Ontario went $20 over their target of $2,150. The Provinces therefore stand as follows:

Central Ontario Province $220 over target.
West Ontario Province $100 over target.
North-West Province $50 over target.
East Ontario Province $20 over target.

Pacific Province reached target.
Eastern Province and Newfoundland Province have later dates; to be heard from.

We most sincerely congratulate our energetic Provincial Officers and their Field and District Officers, upon this accomplishment, which speaks well for the standing of the Army, as well as enables the war to be prosecuted with equal aggressiveness as in the past.

The Klondike Contingent.

In connection with the Harvest Festival, the Klondike Contingent has made another of their startling records. Our readers will remember that Adjt. F. Morris challenged any corps in the Territory to raise a higher amount than Dawson corps. This challenge was not taken up, besides Dawson City tops the list anyway. The Adjt. has raised the splendid sum of $465, which is nearly double his target. There were some Job's comforters to cry "blue ruin" when the Klondike party started out, but their record has not only justified the heavy expense in connection with such an enterprise, but has accomplished more than even the most sanguine optimist dreamt of. A Shelter, which has been salvation to many a body; a wood-yard, that has enabled starving wretches, during an arctic winter, to earn food; a faithfully-carried-out plan of nursing and visiting the sick; a bureau to find employment for the involuntary idlers; a barracks, where salvation has been sought by gully souls; a corps of soldiers that march, sing, pray, and speak in the open-air for God, and that is a standing rebuke to sin, as well as a continual sign-post to heaven and goodness, and the salt of moral preservation: all these are some of the splendid facts that have become such during fifteen months. Great credit is due to the faithfulness, loyalty and devotion of that little band who left our midst determined to have the victory through faith in the God of Victory, to Whom be all the glory.

FOURTEEN SOULS.

ST. CATHARINES. — Thursday Mother Florence turned up with her face all aglow and with a "God bless you." She related some wonderful stories of notorious characters that God had saved in the S. A. Saturday night came at last, but where is the Lieut.-Colonel, Mrs. Margotta? "Oh, he missed the boat," Mrs. Margotta spoke with power in the open-air, 9 p.m., in comes Colonel by the back door, (a volley), some excuses, meeting very interesting. Holiness meeting well, we have not had one for some years that could come up to it. Seven in the Fountain for a clean heart. Mother Florence took no small part in this meeting.

3 p.m. in the park Lieut.-Colonel did excellently. Everybody pleased. Collection $550. We wound up at night with seven souls in the Fountain. Monday night, away we go with banner and song, a little wet, but we are "neither sugar nor salt," as Mother Florence says. Inside "Around the Camp Fires." Old memories of battle-field stories. We wound up a very precious week-end. J. B. Deall, S. C.

Brigadier Gaskin at the Temple.

The closing week-end of Brigadier Gaskin's special campaign proved a good success. The weather was very disagreeable, in fact it rained a good part of the day. The Brigadier's address in the morning was excellent. Afternoon march and inside meeting were times of blessing. One backslider came home in the prayer meeting. At open-air time at night it was raining, so the number who came out to the open-air was small, but we had an excellent time. Inside, deeply interesting meeting. The crowd listened most attentively to the Brigadier's address. Six souls were found at the Mercy Seat at the close of the prayer meeting, making a total of seven for the day. One of the converts was a brother of Texas, Crawford, and three others were backsliders.

Mrs. Gaskin helped in the meetings especially with her singing. We were also pleased to have Staff-Capt. Stanton and Staff-Capt. Morris with us. The singing of the latter was deeply appreciated. Several other Headquarters officers came along. We all sang, "Come again, comrades." W. T. Hancock.

Headquarters' Specials.

The Chief Secretary, Colonel Jacobs, had a go at St. Catharines. The rainy weather interfered with the big open-air demonstration announced for the afternoon, and to some extent with the crowd, but the audience were very good and the best attention was given to the Colonel's straightforward talks on holiness and salvation. Several were found kneeling at the penitent form. The Garden City appreciates the Colonel's visit, and would like to see him back again.

Brigadier Pugmire conducted the usual meeting of the S. A. in the fall, and reports a blessed time.

Major Turner led special meetings at Hamilton I., and reports enthusiastically.

Brigadier Gaskin and his Staff led an excellent meeting at the Temple, which is reported in detail elsewhere. Colonel's visit, and would like to see him back again.

A Klondiker's Wedding.

Adjt. McGill and Adjt. Aikenhead United at Victoria.

By ADJT. ROBERT SMITH.

Another old comrade has gone and left the noble army of backsliders. Yes, our much-loved and esteemed comrade, Adjt. McGill, is married to one of Canada's best and most successful officers, who is loved and esteemed for the length and breadth of our fair Dominion, Adjt. Aikenhead, and it was well done. They were aided in the trying ordeal by Staff-Capt. Galt and the writer.

When the groom was coming down from Skaguay, the S. S. "Danube," on which he travelled, called into Port Simpson. Of course, the Adjutant had to hunt up the Army officers, found us out, and at midnight disturbed our slumbers. We were glad he did, of course; and I surmised what he was after.

He wanted someone to assist him, and asked me to do it. I told him that if ever I could get out, I wished, for I had been down there with our P. O. I would do my best to be his best man.

Adjt. and Mrs. McGill, like the writer, hail from Manitoba, and we have, altogether put in 35 years and three months' service as Salvation officers, being practically among the pioneers of the North-West and B. C. It was with much joy and pleasure we met on such an occasion.

The ceremony was performed in the First Presbyterian Church, in the presence of a large and attentive audience. After the preliminaries, the Brigadier read the 23rd Psalm, and the Army Marriage Covenant Service, then the Rev. Dr. Campbell prayed and read a few verses from Eph. v. 22 to 25. He spoke in a very stirring manner, telling the groom always to second what his wife proposed if he wished their married life to be a happy one, and then, taking the ring and holding it forth, said, as that ring was of pure metal and without an end, so should their love be to one another, and proclaimed them man and wife.

We had a solo from Mrs. Captain Lacey, a few words from the writer, and a glowing testimony to the goodness of Adjt. McGill, also to his goodness, and the Godly character of the bride, from Staff-Capt. Galt.

A few words from the bride and groom. Each seemed fully satisfied in the step they had taken. The bride pleaded with the unsaved to give their hearts to God. A chance was given.

Telegrams of blessing and future usefulness were received from our leader, the Field Commissioner, Brigadier Mrs. Read, also one from Adjts. Adams and Attwell, and read in the meeting.

The doxology was sung, Dr. Campbell pronounced the benediction, and one of the best Army wedding services was brought to a close. God bless them much.

The following is a clipping from a Victorian paper:

"It is apparently quite the fashion for the returned men of the Klondike to seek wives among Victorians, for while the nuptials of Mr. Merman and Miss Frank were being celebrated last evening, a second Klondiker's wedding was taking place not fifty yards away, in the First Presbyterian Church—the principals being Thomas J. McGill, the pioneer officer of the Salvation Army in the Northwest, and Mrs. Laura Sophia Aikenhead. Both bride and groom hold equal rank in the Army, as Adjutants, and the forces were out in full strength to lay a volley of congratulatory greetings. A general church otherwise witnessed the public interest in the Army wedding. This ceremony was preceded with a general service in the well-known Salvationist style, the bride and groom being each, who bound the husband-and-wife-to-its allegiance to the cause in which they are so much interested. Rev. Dr. Campbell then pronounced them man and wife according to the form of the Presbyterian Church. The Witnesses were Adjt. Robert Smith and Staff-Capt. Ethel Galt, and after the wedding the regular service was continued, bride and groom being among the active workers for the cause. The proceedings were full of life and happiness, and no one who attended will fail to wish Adjutant McGill and Adjutant Mrs. McGill all kinds of good wishes during their married life in north. They are returning to Skaguay to-day via Vancouver."

Cadet Nancy Wilfong, of Lippincott Street Garrison.

Shortly after entering the Training Garrison the Cadet became decidedly ill, and had to be removed to the Manning Avenue Branch of the General Hospital. Every attention was paid to her, but organic disease had so progressed that an operation became necessary, which, however, proved fatal, as it was feared. Her suffering was severe. Cadet Wilfong was a good, Godly girl, with the promise of a successful officer in her. Her body was taken to Heesler, Ont., her home, where she had also been a soldier of the local corps.

A memorial service was conducted at the barracks by Capt. Stote, with her father and other relatives present. Her example lives in the memory of all who know her, while her spirit has gone to be with Jesus.

Main Street, Collingwood.

City Hall and Market, Collingwood, Ont.

I want to meet the difficulties that people nowadays raise against the cleansing of God.

What are the difficulties? One difficulty you will find in Galatians v. 17, "For the flesh lusteth against the Spirit, and the Spirit against the flesh; and these are contrary the one to the other: so that ye cannot do the things that ye would." "The flesh lusteth against the Spirit, and the Spirit against the flesh." They say this must go on, but they do not want to see where it ends. Galatians v. 24 (R.V.), solves that question. "They that are of Christ Jesus have crucified the flesh with the passions and lusts thereof." The devil is such a cunning old fox; he has had six thousand years of experience, and you can't play with him very well. He says to Christians, "Look at Galatians v. 17," but he puts his plaster upon Galatians v. 24. Open your eyes. Let the Lord, by His Spirit, teach you, so that you may have the right kind of eyes to look through this chapter and these verses. Galatians v. 24 solves this difficulty.

Many people argue about the "old man." They say, "What about the old man?" God bless you, for when the Lord has put him, Romans vi. 6, "Knowing this, that the old man is crucified with him, that the body of sin might be destroyed, that henceforth we should not serve sin." What business have we to change his place? Why do you want to take the nail out? The Lord has put him on the cross with Himself. Christ went on the cross with your sins; He also went on the cross with the old man. You believe the first fact; you don't believe the second fact. Christ took your sins in His body on the tree—you believe that and you are saved; but why don't you believe in the same way that the old man was crucified with Him, that the body of sin might be destroyed? You believe one fact by faith; you disbelieve the other fact. If one is true, the other is also true.

Glory be to God, I want to see the world! When God says "Outside," look outside, on Christ. Say, "I am not going to look inside anymore, but I am going to look there on the cross."

What about "self"? Some say you can't get rid of it. That is another difficulty. Gal. ii. 20, "I am crucified with Christ; nevertheless I live; yet not I, but Christ liveth in me; and the life which I now live in the flesh I live by the faith of the Son of God. Who loved me and gave Himself for me." What is the Revised Version for that? "I have been crucified with Christ." That says "I have been." Why "have been"? That shows that you are to realize that your "self" has been put upon the cross—according to your faith. It is a fact—old David is on the cross, though his personality is here. If you lose faith, you will find your "self" back again. Faith puts it outside, disbelieve keeps it inside. It is only out by faith. All Scripture, all doctrines, all blessings in the Bible are received by faith—by faith, faith, FAITH alone! When the Lord says anything He means it. You should not put your own opinion in place of it. Do you see it now?

Romans vi. 13 is another verse that people find fault with. "For if ye live after the flesh, ye shall die; but if ye, through the spirit, do mortify the deeds of the body, ye shall live." "Mortify the deeds of the body," people stumble on this. To mortify means to cause to die. You are to cause what is to die. Not the body, but the things inside. It is something without—deeds of the old man. Col. iii. 6, "Ye have put off the old man, with his deeds." If the old man is crucified on the cross outside, his deeds need be inside, while he is outside? So mortification of deeds is entirely outside again. God says to "mortify," or cause to die, "the deeds of the body." Fields, you see, the body is not within, but without by faith. So to "mortify the deeds of the body" is outside. So please do understand that mortifying the deeds is nowhere within you, but outside by faith. Your work is to put your faith on the promise of God, and He keeps you safe both within and without. Isa. xxxiii. 3, "I, the Lord, do keep it; I will water it every moment; lest any hurt it, I will keep it night and day." "He have put off the old man with His deeds," "with his deeds." Don't have any communication with the deeds of unbelief, my brother. Every point in the Bible is sure, clear cut. You should not use your imagination there. God is true! God is true!

Perhaps you will say, "Is that all? What about the old heaven?" I Cor. v. 7, "Purge out, therefore the old heaven." "Purge out." It is not "keep in." You understand what "out" means. It is not to "keep in" at all. God means "out," and let it be out. Don't give your own meaning by saying, "Keep it inside."

Oh, glory be to God for the wonderful deliverance through Jesus Christ! He delivers you from all sin. He keeps nothing unclean in the heart, but cleanseth one from all evil.

Perhaps you will say, "Nature! what about nature?" Answer, II Peter i. 4, "Whereby are given unto us exceeding great and precious promises: that by these ye might be partakers there. By His wonderful word, and by His indwelling power, His nature is imparted, and His life, His peace, His joy, His satisfaction, all that He has is seen in our daily life. What is in Him, comes out of you.

We are "partakers of the Divine nature, having escaped corruption." That is it. Glory be to God! It is not "shall escape." Not after death, nor just before you die. Death will never alter life. Never! Death only puts an end to your life. If you die a drunkard, you will rise a drunkard. If you die a thief, you will rise a thief. If you are judged as a thief. Suppose a drinker dies, and some man has power to raise him. As soon as he is raised he will go and get something to drink. His life was only stopped. If you raise him up, the first thing he will ask for will be a glass of brandy, because his nature was not altered by his death. Death never alters life, but only puts an end to it. If you cannot be delivered from your corruption now, you cannot be delivered from it after your death, or even after your resurrection.

You do not find in your Bible that God promises you deliverance after death. Make this very plain in your

Once more, as anticipated in our forecast a few weeks ago, the W. O. P. braves have asserted themselves. The H. F. was a gallant fight, and demonstrated again the whole-hearted devotion and service of both our officers and soldiery.

The following corps succeeded in passing their targets: London, Ingersoll, Paris, Hespeler, Chatham, Ridgeway, Dresden, St. Thomas, Thorndale, Watford, Seaforth, Goderich, Simcoe, Woodstock, and Tilsonburg; while the under-mentioned hit the bull's-eye: Brantford, Galt, Berlin, Blenheim, Wallaceburg, Bothwell, Strathroy, Palmerston, Tavistock, Wingham, Petrolia, Elmira, Clinton, Bayfield, Mitchell, Windsor, Essex, and Leamington. Only six missed the mark, and in one or two cases there were exceptional difficulties to contend with.

While space will not permit to individualize each place, yet special mention should be made of the London braves, who succeeded in going $27.00 over their target, making a splendid total of $15,000; while Capt. Burton, with his Imperial comrades tallied up an even $100.00. Bravo! Of other champions Thorndale deserves a word of commendation. This corps went $5 over its target, in face of a building scheme. Capt. Jarvis deserves great credit. The rest of our comrades, with their loyal rank and file, are all held in grateful remembrance for the way in which they have acquitted themselves.

The Juniors were an important factor in this year's effort. Their returns have been classed in the following order: CLASS I. ($50 and over)—London $50, Ingersoll $58.00, Windsor $50, under Sergt.-Major and Mrs. Kerswell, did nobly, and succeeded in raising the above magnificent total of $80, while Sergt.-Major Mrs. Kennedy, of Ingersoll, with her Juniors, followed hard with nearly $60.

CLASS II. (Representing those who did $25 and over.)—Windsor $31.67, Wingham $31.65, Chatham $31.45. This class was very close contested. Windsor Juniors led, followed by Wingham, with Chatham a good third. Honors pretty evenly divided. Adj. Blackburn has it.

CLASS III. ($15 and upwards.)—Dresden leads off with $18.50, while Clinton scored $15. Both places did well.

CLASS IV. ($5 and over.)—Eight corps are found in this section, headed by Petrolia, who just missed the third degree $1, rounded up with Woodstock comes next with $11.40, followed in close order by the other six corps—Tilsonburg $10, St. Thomas $7.15, Paris $6.40, Llewellyn $6, Ridgeway $5.18; Thorndale brings up the rear with $5.

A number of other corps are represented by sums from $4 and under. The whole effort has been carried out practically without touching the ground covered for the $2.00 battle. We thank God for a grand total of $2,101.33, thereby smashing all previous records.

Later.

Brantford Juniors doubled their amount of last year, scoring a grand total of $30; $11.50 of which Little Reggie Rowe collected. I think Reggie deserves taking the $2.00 prize, highest Junior collector in the Province.

Palmerston's "coming Army" helped the total out there to the extent of $14.65; while Stratford's Juniors secured $10.30, just three cents more than last year.—G. L. P.

of the Divine nature, having escaped the corruption that is in the world." "Having escaped," not "shall escape." "Having escaped, by partaking of the Divine nature." When you partake of the nature of Jesus Christ, you are partakers of four things:—partakers of one bread (that is, of one life), I Cor. x. 17, "For we are all partakers of that one bread—partakers of His holiness, Heb. xii. 10, "For they reach for a few days chastened us after their own pleasure; but He, for our profit, that we might be partakers of His holiness"—partakers of His suffering, I Peter iv. 13, "But rejoice inasmuch as ye are partakers of Christ's suffering"—and partakers of His glory, I Peter v. 1, "And also a partaker of the glory that shall be revealed." There are three other things for those who are partakers of the Divine nature. So you see, when you partake of Christ's nature, it is Christ's nature, and all that He is, that comes out through your life. Life is one thing, nature is another thing. The tree has life, but its nature will be seen in its fruit. Life is not nature. The tree may have life, but the fruit may be bad fruit. The fruit is according to the nature of the tree, not according to the life of the tree. So Jesus Christ is the nature. By His wonderful word, and by His indwelling power, His nature is imparted, and His life, His peace, His joy, His satisfaction, all that He has is seen in our daily life. What is in Him, comes out of you.

CHAPTER V.

IN PERIL.

"I've got you now, old boy, I've got you now. We'll see who is the best man."

These were the frenzied words coming from a man the worse for liquor, whom Ralph found seated at a table in a saloon at Glendive, a very rough place in Montana.

A number of cowboys were drinking here, and as Ralph entered the place the above-mentioned fellow thought he knew him as someone against whom he had an old grudge, and fully resolved to settle matters on the spot. Ralph explained to him that he was a stranger and never saw him before, but that only seemed to make him worse.

The bar-tender knew that there was trouble brewing, so, assisted by others, got the two outside the saloon.

Ralph's opponent was a large German, and Ralph thought it better to take a thrashing than run, when he considered everything. However, when he got an opening, through the German's awkwardness in fighting, he gave him a telling blow that felled him to the ground, and the subject of our sketch became a conqueror. The cowboys were angry because he did not thrash him further. Cowboys are rough and edgier braver, so Ralph became a special favorite at once and got different offers to go herding. He spent the summer without any extraordinary happenings, apart from an occasional stampede or cattle frightened by lightning, rushing over precipices and some getting killed.

Ralph in Danger of Being Shot.

In the fall Ralph went to Oregon, and as the rainy season set in he became sick of the place. After a while he got a job in a logging camp and found the place so lively and exciting that he did not get lonely. It was customary to have dances two or three times a week.

He stayed about two years at this work. On pay days he would go with the other boys to Portland, although not getting drunk, his money went at theatres and gambling.

Now came a crisis in Ralph's life. He was either induced or went of his own accord to a revival meeting near the camp, where he heard of the power of God to save. He was brought to think of his life as unsatisfactory, and concluded he would become a Christian. Therefore, he gave his heart to God and started a new life. In other words, he turned his face now towards the Sun of Righteousness and became the recipient of its kindly beams. The shadowy halcyon life of a wayward wanderer, and the path of death, had been left behind, and his footprints turned in the right direction.

After this he found a friend who was going to California. He took a special interest in Ralph, and invited him to go with him. Ralph did so, and with the children of this new-found friend, he began to attend the State Normal School. He attended for three years. His friend went to Chicago, but Ralph had made other friends in California. He worked faithfully at his studies, putting in every day he was at school at work to pay his way, his friends doing everything they could to help him. On one occasion, while trimming trees in front of a mansion, he cut his foot. A friend close at hand bound up the foot with towels he got from the house, and then took him to the doctor.

The doctor offered to give him stimulants, thinking he could not stand the swelling of the wound.

Ralph positively refused this, as he promised not to drink again, nor mingle with drunkards.

Now he began to realize he had real friends, as they came from all parts of the city to see him. His wants were supplied. The doctor refused to take pay for his services. After Ralph got better, though yet unable to go to school for study, he went to visit his class. They were all glad to see him and had a surprise waiting. The teacher came and put an envelop in his pocket saying not to open it until he got home. When he arrived home he opened it, you may be sure, and found it contained several gold pieces and other money, also a beautiful letter from the teacher and class mates, asking him to receive it as a token of love and sympathy. During his three years at school he won every time, though he was one of sixty-five students, the merit of being the most studious.

At the expiration of his three years at school he got a letter saying his father was not expected to live, so he went to his home in North Dakota, where he stayed all summer. People were delighted to see him after years of absence, and on account of now being a Christian.

His father's health improved, however, and in the fall Ralph went west again, intending to put in the winter in the logging camps, to make money for more schooling. However, he soon got in with old companions, and gradually went back, at last becoming an out-and-out backslider. He started again over life's plain with his face turned from the sun. Poor Ralph. He spent the next two years in the States of California, Washington and Oregon, and finally went back to gambling; in fact, he almost concluded to make it a profession.

Ah, he was miserable, very miserable at times, as a backslider. He tried often to get better, in his own strength, his lost experience.

At length, tired of the west and of evil ways, he concluded he would again strike for home. At this particular time the railroads were both on strike, so when he got to Portland he found he could not go any further. He took his baggage to the express office and paid the expressage to his home. Then, while waiting for the train to run, he started homeward on the track on foot.

Ralph in Danger of Drowning.

"Sit down, I have got something to tell you." These words came from the lips of a man whom Ralph had overtaken the second day on the way out of Portland. They had walked on together. He was liberal and paid the expenses of both, and Ralph liked his company, being very sociable and agreeable. After being together three days they were getting near Tacoma. The country was a timbered and mountainous one, and only settled near the railway. They came to a small village, and as they were approaching it Ralph's companion spoke the above words, requesting Ralph to sit down.

The stranger told Ralph that for seven years he had been a highway robber, helping to rob stages and trains. "Snacking a small place like this is only a picnic," he said. He told Ralph he could easily accomplish the work alone without danger, but there was not reason why they should not go in together, take the money from the two stores, two saloons, and depot, share it up and enjoy life.

Ralph did not like starting this kind of work, so after good-naturedly making a good deal of fun of Ralph for being afraid, the robber gave many of his reasons why they should proceed with the robbing.

Ralph in Danger of Being Hung.

"The saloon keepers," he said, "robbed people themselves, and the money belonged to them as much as to the saloon-keepers."

He finally showed much determination that Ralph should go with him, so Ralph planned how to get out of it.

Ralph knew he must get the man's confidence, so he told him they were within sight of people and had better go into the woods until dark. It was the middle of the afternoon. They at once went to the woods, and as they had some time to spare and the robber had some dime novels in his pocket, he began reading one, offering Ralph another.

Ralph lay down under a tree and held it over his face pretending he was reading.

Many things passed through his mind.

He imagined he could see himself a full-fledged robber with revolver belt and bowie knives about his person, hearing news of his being arrested, tried for murder and convicted.

As Ralph had read much of robbers, he knew much of their ways. After planning everything up to get on his feet and asked the robber for a red handkerchief. This the other produced.

Ralph took this and cut it in two corners, using it half would be enough for him to cover his face.

This seemed to have the desired effect. He handed the robber back half of the handkerchief, putting the other half in his pocket. Ralph then asked him about his revolver. After being told it had not been used for some time he cautioned his partner to put in new ammunition, so as to be sure it was all right. As he threw out the old cartridges he said, "Here, Bob, put these in your pocket. You might as well have them as me." After he had examined the revolver to see if it worked well, Ralph held out his hand, and as he says, "To-day, joy he dropped the revolver into my hand for my examination." This was a desperate moment. As Ralph stood there in front of the robber, he felt frozen to the ground. He began to tremble terribly, and saw he must act quick, or not at all. He made a terrific spring from the robber, and faced him, saying, "I've got you now. You did not know who you was dealing with, did you? I've been looking for you for a long while." The robber saw he was taken in, and schemed how to get out of the predicament. He stepped forward very coolly and doing so took up the remaining cartridges in his pocket and very humbly offered them to Ralph, as he would have no use for them without the revolver.

Ralph told him, "I know you too well." Took full aim, and said, "Another shot and you will be a dead man." The robber stopped, and at the word of command from his new conqueror, faced about and started toward the left.

Ralph was very brave for a few moments, but when the robber broke and fled for his life Ralph did not fire, but fled in the opposite direction, fully determined to know the next man better before he became his companion.

Ralph thought it a very lucky thing that he got his revolver, as he surely would have committed some crime, and if caught, the fact that he was with him as a companion, might have made him to be suspected as his accomplice. Ralph stayed a couple of days in a small village, some distance from this scene of action, and then, as the train began to run, he took a through ticket for home.

Ralph stayed at home about a year. The Army, having opened in F., he became a volunteer, and was soon a full-fledged Salvationist.

BATTLE CRIES.

LISTOVILL.—Last Thursday night we had Ensign Orchard, Dr. O., and Capt. Pynn, with us. A storm somewhat hindered the crowd, but we had a real good time. After the meeting we had ice cream and refreshments, and the hot cakes! Good meetings all day Sunday. We also reached our H. F. target, which was $37.—Lieut. Flora Cook, for Capt. Mathers.

PERTH.—Harvest Festival has come and gone, and as for us Perth is convinced it was a good success. We were enabled to raise over $11 more than the largest sum ever collected for H. F. in this place. Our target was $46, and we had about four soldiers whom we could depend upon for help. Much credit for the success of the effort must be given to Bro. Wm. Labron, who cheerfully took a target of $10, although he had only been saved about two and a half months, and immediately plausibly how to go about to raise it. Can anyone beat him I wonder? I am sending his photo for the Cry. The writer and Bro. Labron travelled during H. F. week, over 100 miles by wagon and bicycle, interviewing farmers, merchants, and village merchants, and but for the terribly dry summer, which either killed or put back vegetables, fruit, etc., we would have doubled our target. Mrs. Pugh and several friends helped with their needles, the remaining soldiers did their best, some of them collecting a little in spite of family ties.—Richard Pugh, Ensign.

REVELSTOCK.—Since last report several events have taken place. H. F. is the only target raised. To God be all the glory. Bro. Lawrence, Sister Coombs were joined in wedlock, Brigadier Howell and Rev. Mr. Thompson officiating. Captains Fisher and Scott, on their way home, are taking a rest at Toronto and Spokane respectively. We have received Ensign and Mrs. Cummins as their successors. God bless them. We have learned to love them already. Watch our smoke.—Bro. C. Willis.

HEART'S DELIGHT.—Although you have not heard from us for such a long time, yet we're not going to stand still. We rejoice over souls coming to Him for pardon. Hallelujah! Doubtless by the time this appears in print we shall have our H. F. target. The people are not backward in helping.—D. Berton, Capt.

EXPOITS.—Ndd.—Hallelujah! We can report victory through the Blood of the Lamb. On Friday night we had a special meeting. God came very near to our souls, and found our nation. On Sunday night three souls in the Fountain.—J. B. Foote, Lieut.

TILT COVE.—Ndd.—We are still fighting down here. Harvest Festival has come along again. Officers and soldiers are taking hold of it in proper Army style. Sunday, the collecting cards were given to the soldiers, and to the surprise of the officers, the sisters had courage enough to rise up and challenge the brothers. The soldiers were determined to beat 'em. Our faith is up to the mustard for '90, $100.—L. Smart, R. C.

LIVERPOOL.—N. S.—For about two or three weeks we have been hard at work getting ready to hit our H. F. target, and, praise God, our work has not been in vain. On Monday night, Sept. 10, we had a special meeting. It was a decided success, and we were able to send off our target next day to P. H. Q. On Thursday night we had the joy of seeing a dear young girl cry to God for mercy. Yesterday (Sunday) we had good meetings all day. At night a man who has been a backslider for some years came back to God.—J. L. R., for Capt. Taylor.

Weekly Watchword:

xx Earnestness.

A sacred burden is this life ye bear,
Look on it, lift it, bear it solemnly,
Stand up and walk beneath it steadily,
Faithfully.
But not for sorrow, falter not for sin,
But onward, upward, till the goal ye win.
F. A. K.

DAILY TONIC.

SUNDAY.

The Earnestness of Jesus.—Luke xxii. 44.

The close of the Saviour's life was characterized by that same desperate and devoted earnestness which had marked all His ministry among men. For this the poor and afflicted had sought Him in hope of practical relief, for this the sick and sorrowing had come to Him for ensured sympathy, and for this the foes of truth and righteousness had recognized in Him the formidable enemy to the cause and practices of evil. If more followers of Christ were examples of His zeal the world would be sooner convinced of Christianity's realities.

MONDAY.

Earnest Hope.—Phil. i. 20.

In spiritual things as in temporal happenings, we often get very much what we expect. People of small faith and uncertain expectation rarely astonish the world by their experience or accomplishment. A buoyant and earnest hopefulness is a trait too blessed to the character and beneficial to the world to go unconfessed, while it commands the confidence and recognition of God.

TUESDAY.

Earnest Contention for the Faith.—Jude 3.

It is little wonder that the world finds it hard to believe in the Christian's faith when the Christian himself shows such disinclination to fight for it, or even often so much as to stand up for it. If we believe in our religion with a deathless confidence we shall be too zealous of its interests and witness to hear a whispered reproach or witness a feeble attack without at once taking up aggressive means to protect and vindicate it.

WEDNESDAY.

An Earnest and Lawful Covetousness.—I. Cor. xii. 31.

Covetousness is so distinctly restricted in the Old Testament that we are surprised to find it here enjoined upon us in the New. But this is not the envy prohibited in the tenth commandment. It is rather a righteous craving after those gifts and graces which are essential to the spiritual fruitfulness of our life in Christ. The more earnest that is our desire for these, the more fervent will our petitions for them and the more abundant God's satisfaction of the same.

THURSDAY.

Earnestness an Insurance Against Backsliding.—Heb. ii. 1.

Half-heartedness leaves the soul's door open, and loses more people's spiritual blessings than perhaps any other snare. Those who are earnestly contending for and defending their faith are not in imminent danger of letting it slip through their fingers. Earnestness keeps the lock over the gifts of God, yet gives them out in new offerings for the blessing of other souls.

FRIDAY.

An Earnest Prayer and Its Answer.—James v. 17.

Elijah's prayer was a pattern of sincerity and zeal. He prayed with an importunity and persistence which so commended itself to Heaven that the clouds were sealed for more than three years. Were our prayers more earnest, more definite and more unselfish in their object, we should have more evidence of their being heard and granted. We must not forget that it

A PARALYTIC HEALED.

Mark ii. 1-12.

Christ in the house at Capernaum attracted a crowd of curious citizens. Christ in the home, in the heart, in the life, never fails to attract notice. People who think that they can possess a real religion in secret are deluded by the devil—the world is quick to discover the presence of the world's Redeemer. If your Christianity is of the right sort it is bound to make itself known and to command the confidence of the righteous and the equity of the evil-doer.

The life of our Lord was lived in the public eye. Although the events of His ministry were of the most unostentatious character, their miraculous and merciful fame brought the people flocking around Him. The comfort of privacy had little part or lot in His days among men. He was content to forego retirement for the sake of others. We, as soldiers of His cause and followers of His example, should not shrink from mingling with the crowd, nor bearing the honor or blame which it may show us as the Master's marked men and women.

In this narrative central interest does not attach itself to the paralytic, but to the four friends who succeeded in bringing him to the Great Healer. Three lessons they may teach those whose lives are given to leading sinless souls to the all-sufficient Saviour. They show us the three great essentials for effectual seeking and saving of souls.

First, they displayed a very real and practical interest in the sick man. Theirs was no sentimental sympathy, so ready to be expressed in word and so tardy of expression in deed. They cared so much for His healing that they thought nothing of his helpless weight as they carried his stretcher to the house where Jesus was. Nor was the trouble deemed too great, when finding the door impassible, they carried the invalid to the roof and let him down at Jesus' feet. It is probable that alone they might have pushed through the crowd and been present to hear the Master's words; but they were willingly unselfishly to forego their own interests and so, though unconsciously, were fulfilling His will. Real love for the people does not hesitate at hardness, or turn back at sacrifice. The test of love is service, and if we feel for dying men as we feel that we shall be glad to suffer or lose if needs be, that they may be reached and saved.

Second, they showed a lively faith in the ability of the Saviour to do for the sick man what his extreme need demanded. There was no question in their minds as to the possibility of failure in the Healer—all they felt essential to do was to get him to the Saviour. This should be the ground work of the soul winner's efforts. He must believe in the uttermost ability of God's salvation to cure the spiritually diseased and sin-debated. There will be great trials of his faith, hearts will seem harder than flint to his appeals and frustrating as weather-vanes in their desires after God. But He must hold to the desperate conviction that God's salvation can seek, save, and establish any soul for whom His cost on Calvary was paid.

Third, they were persistent. Had they gone back for difficulty, they would have carried the man home a gain, when they found entrance impossible by the door. But perseverance is often ingenious; they found a way in after all, and saw their sick friend made whole before they left the place. God give us, as saviours of men, more of this determined spirit. Hundreds of hearts would never have knelt at Jesus' feet, had it not been for some voice of appeal which had refused to take no for an answer, or some hand which, though often brushed impatiently aside, had again and again laid pleadingly upon their sleeve. Persistence proves the soul-winner's passion for the people, and has many times forged the link uniting the faltering sinner to the waiting Saviour.

SATURDAY.

An Evil Earnestness.—Micah vii. 3.

Sin is earnest. While too many professing followers of the Cross are idling away their opportunities and making travesty of their sacred cause, the devotees of pleasure and passion are giving themselves up to their idols. While sinners were holding on to evil, as the prophet says, "with both hands," does it not behoove the soldiers of Calvary's love to spend and be spent, with all they have and are in the interests of righteousness. Only earnest saints can be a match for abandoned sinners.

The Better Reputation.

Capt. Wilkins sends us the following incident, which is worth noting: A well-known man of a western town stopped one of our soldiers on the street, and said to him, "I am glad to see you. I had to go down at once to see Mr. —, she is dying. Our minister is pretty good at preaching, but he is a good at a time like this." What is your strongest point? Eloquent preaching is all right and praiseworthy, but one act of charity gives greater force to a stammering testimony than the most perfect delivery and grammar to an eloquent address.

Religion is the best armour but the worst cloak.

Newfoundland News.

Brigadier Sharp arrived back on Thursday from the Grand Bank District. More unpleasant experiences. His first corps to visit was Lunenburg. Adjt. McKee, the D. O. men, who were having arrived from Grand Bank the day before. Things are bright here, two outposts being added to the corps. A meeting was held there and the next day we proceeded to Port au Port, a distance of 20 miles. The first 10 they rowed in a small boat, the other 10 they had to travel through bog, swamps and thick bush about three feet high; but fortune was reached and they had a good meeting. Capt. Barry is in good spirits, and has great faith for victory in the Larvest Festival battle.

At Grand Bank, the District Headquarters the week-end was spent. Officers are determined to get to move on here, and are working heartily at the J. S. work. On Thursday they started out for Garnish, having to go in a boat 20 miles. The comrades at the corps are of the right stamp—when the officer is not there the meetings go ahead all the same. One time there was no officer there for over 12 months, but they held out and fought and had victory. They have just had an ingathering of souls.

The next day they left for Burin, a distance of 24 miles to the quarters. For a part of the journey they had some difficulties, but they started off they were hawky, running in the bog and bush, but they managed to get there. He had two meetings there, then Adjt. McKee and Capt. Barry took the boat to the quarters. The steamer that was to take the Brigadier to St. Johns was expected to be at the wharf at 9 o'clock, and as she only stays about five or ten minutes, he had to be there. Since the wharf is in the harbor, the quarters. He had to remain on the pier until 7:35 in the morning.

Last night six recruits were enrolled as Siam Soldiers. This is the first enrolment since the war. Four souls at the close of the meeting. Capt. Harris is rejoicing over victories gained. Souls are being saved here in the city and many in out-harbors.

The Joys and Sorrows

OF A NEWFOUNDLAND P. O.

Brigadier Sharp in a letter recently described a part of his tour in the Southern District, and we are certain that the extract below will interest our readers.

"Burin, the next place, twenty-five miles across country, we rode across on little ponies, and it was a ride and no mistake, my bones ached for two or three days after. Burin is a difficult place to get hold of the people, as it is broke up into fourteen different Coves. Catholics, Methodists, Church of England, and the Army. I had to wait two days here to get the boat for St. Johns, the last word received was that it might be in at any time after eight in the evening. The Government wharf is two miles from the quarters. So I went down to stay at the wharf until the boat arrived, as it only stays about five or ten minutes in the harbor, and it would be impossible for me to catch it if I was in the quarters when it whistled. I had to wait from 9 o'clock in the evening until 7:35 in the morning. No shelter whatever. I went to one house near by, the only one that took boarders. She was a Methodist lady, but when she saw my uniform, she said she was too sick to take any boarders in, although she took others in there, so there was nothing for me to do but to stay on the wharf and patiently wait for the boat. It started to rain about ten o'clock, and rained all night and the morning. I laid down on the cold wet planks six different times during the night, and tried to find rest and sleep. I would sleep for about one-half hour, then wake up cold and wet, and wait about for another half hour, and as soon as I got a little warm I would get sleepy again, so I would plant my head on the boards and put my hand under my arm, as a bird puts its head under its wing, and would go off to sleep for half an hour. I was really glad when the steamer reached the pier. I went aboard, had breakfast and went to bed and got my clothes dried. I am glad to say that I do not feel any the worse for it to-day."

THEDFORD.—Our H. F. has been a success. Capt. Jarvis wheeled round the country soliciting gifts from the farmers who responded nobly. Our numbers were right to the front. They deserve a pat on the back. We have hit our target in the right place.—Thos. Lord, R. C.

BARRE, VT.—We are still alive and fighting the good fight of faith. H. F. is past and we got the full amount of our target. P. S. M. Perkins, I understand, has put on three or four new bowlers. He's determined to get Mag ahead. (Thunders of applause from Ernest Enterprise.—Ed.) Zacheus.

FAIRSBORO, N. S.—Seven souls on Sunday—one at holiness meeting and six at night. The scene at the post-out form at night made us glad—husband, wife and daughter knelt together seeking salvation, and two sisters of another family followed by another woman, who at one time was a soldier. They are doing nicely and have taken hold of H. F.—Mrs. Capt. Parsons.

HAMPTON, N. B.—Thank God, we are again able to report victory. By the hard work of our ever faithful officers and some other kind friends we have made our Harvest Festival a success. In our afternoon meeting we had the joy of seeing three souls kneeling at the Mercy Seat.—E. D. McAllister. (Will our Correspondent please write on ONE SIDE OF THE PAPER ONLY.—Ed.)

HUNTSVILLE.—Victory was on our side for Harvest Festival. Our soldiers did nobly. The meetings were enjoyed by all. Monday night was our sale. Sec. Hunt disposing of the things. The Juniors did their part, and altogether we rejoiced in going $6 over our target.—E. Pattenden.

YARMOUTH, N. S.—We had Major Pickering with us for Saturday night and Sunday. Large crowd at every meeting. Largest number around the open-air Saturday night, that for months before. Sunday, in the holiness meeting three comrades came out seeking heart purity, and Sunday night two professed conversion.—A. E. H.

BLENNHEIM.—Capt. and Mrs. Huntington said good-bye on Sunday night after six months of faithful service under great difficulties. Monday we had a soldiers' "At Home." Ice cream and watermelon were served, and all enjoyed a pleasant time. Capt. Dowell has taken up the retus here.—Lna Groom.

HAMILTON I.—Sunday night prayer meeting program: 1st comes. Is there another? 2nd good clean sing. "Why not to-night?" 3rd and 4th come. Desperate prayer. 5th, 6th, 7th, 8th, 9th at the Mercy Seat. Each gave first testimony, take first march. Holiness wind-up, evensong, prayer, 10:30 p.m.—N. K. Frickey, Lieut.

WESTVILLE, N. S.—Praise be the Name of the Lord! The old ark will float. A triumphant Harvest Festival, the target of $55 over-reached. Adj. Byers and Lieut. Lendley and a regiment of soldiers, from New Glasgow and Stellarton, were present at the Festival. The barracks crowded. A bonn supper. Capt. Pittman and Lieut. McLeod had things in good shape.—W. Hamilton.

MISSOULA, Mont.—On Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday nights we were with us Adj. A. H. Had good meetings, good crowds. Adj. Hay and wife have also been with us the last week. They, with Lieutenant, impowelled from Missoula, Adjutant and wife going to Billings. Lieutenant Boyd going to other parts. On Monday night one soul farewelled from us, last night two more accepted Christ as their personal Saviour, making three since last report.—J. H. Frost, R. C.

ST. THOMAS.—God week-end meetings just closed. Major and Mrs. Southall were with us. They were given a hearty welcome, not only by the soldiers, but by the St. Thomas people generally, who came in large numbers to see and hear them. The Major's talk to us at holiness meetings will be long remembered. One out for the blessing of a clean heart. The afternoon meeting was well attended. We had a real good free-and-easy. Mrs. Southall's words were listened to with rapt attention. The inimitable Captain Smith, of London, was also with us, and favored us with some of his lively tales. Large crowd at night. Good collection. One soul on Friday night. Praise God!—B. G.

CHANNEL, N.B.—Harvest Festival is over and it has been a good time. We worked hard and the result is that we shot on past our target of $42 and struck $70. People wonder how we did it with such a small force, but it was only faith and works going together. Truly God's hand was in it. The soldiers deserve credit for they way they took it up, and our friends took a very active part. One unsaved woman collected $2.40, and another collected $1.—E. H.

A Bluff on Honora Bay, Manitoulin Island.

QUEBEC.—God is with us. We are having blessed times in our kneedrills, soldiers' and holiness meetings. Souls getting saved and sanctified. Six recruits are about ready to be enrolled. Crowds getting better. Blessed spiritual results from our Harvest Festival effort, also we hopped over the target of $183. We got $187 easy. We are in full stretch for mighty victories for the future. Some visitors lately. Capt. and Mrs. Beard, from the U. S., also Ensign Parker. We have a special visitor now, Bro. R. E. Miller, of the H. M. S. One of our special League workers. He is a first-class petty officer, a blessed lad. A mighty inspiration to the meetings. One of the Life and Glory Boys. We are having a week's holiness meetings. We must have a revival. Amen!—Hux & Ken.

ST. JOHN III. has had some very hard fighting in the last two weeks, but we have come off more than conquerors. Our open-air meetings have been a great success. Our Captain and his little band of Cadets and soldiers, have, by the power of God, forced back the power of darkness and captured six backsliders. The Harvest Festival was a great success, our target being completely realized and $25 to the good. So now we have consecrated ourselves with more of burning zeal for precious souls; and as fishermen, we mean to sail right into the sea of iniquity, cast forth the bait of righteousness, and win souls for the Kingdom of the Lord.—Cor. W. Marshall.

OMEMENT.—We are marching on to victory. We have had with us this last three weeks Cadet Lane, of Peterboro fame, also there was another arrival last week in the person of Mrs. Ensign Elliott and four little Juniors, all the way from Randolph, U. S. Good meeting Sunday, and one brother returned to God for pardon, and went away rejoicing, and on Tuesday night we had with us the Right Honorable Adj. Wiggins, of the Lindsay District, also the noted Cornishman and Hallelujah Preacher, from Uxbridge. We had a good open-air and marched to the barracks amid peering rain while we felt the glory coming down.—Reg. Cor.

PRINCE ALBERT, Sask.—Just a word or two to let you know that we are still to the battle's front. With a great deal of hard work we have reached our Harvest Festival target. Owing to the wet weather, it was very difficult to get around collecting, that is what Captain thought when she got upset out of her rig in a wash-out. In spite of all God has been with us and given us the victory. Under the able management of Cadet McLeod, a good sum was raised by the making of an autograph quilt. Ensign Perry has just been with us for a few days, and spent a very profitable time. Capt. Ferguson is about to fare well and is going on a well-earned rest. Cadet McLeod has also received marching orders for parts unknown as yet.—G. M. B. R. C.

BEAR RIVER, N. S.—To-morrow even Major Pickering, with Staff-Capt. Taylor, will be here. D.V. Captain has invited three ministers and a local preacher to come to the welcome meeting. All have promised to come. Capt. Muttart farewelled last

HUSTLERS' RENDEZVOUS.

Alas! Poor Southall!

THE VICTIM OF A CRUEL PLOT.

The Central P. O. on His High Horse.

A DEAD HEAT BETWEEN THREE OF THE PROVINCIAL HORSES FOR SECOND PLACE.

ANOTHER DEAD HEAT BETWEEN TWO OTHERS FOR FIFTH PLACE.

Is the Removal of Major Southall Only a Rumor?

By ERNEST ENTERPRISE.

In keeping with these troublous times, there is a truly impermanent expression on the face of the present occasion. Moves and counter-moves, rumors and reports, a quick glance at one's armor, a sharpening of sword, and a clenching of teeth! A mere cursory glance at the positions of the rival factions will sufficiently well explain the cause of the above-mentioned commotion. The latest coup is the reported capture of Major Southall, his speedy decease and instant burial.

It appears that Brigadier Gaskin has profited by the troubled situation, and has secured the best position available for himself and troops. Nigger, that old war horse, who has more than once carried his rider triumphantly to the front, is showing superb form, and has outstretched his enemies (7).

Major R. Hargrave and Major R. Pickering seem to have had their pickers together and planned the downfall of Major Southall. Their careers have been characterized by extreme caution and stealthy perseverance, until it now appears that the venerable West Ontario commander is dead, buried and out of the race! Our cartoon shows them the awful act of burying their rival!

It were idle on my part to attempt a recount of all the departed Major's estimable qualities. One, I can, however, with safety and without fear of contradiction, mention, and that is his glowing record in the Competition List. For months now he has led the brigade to victory, and earned a niche in the Temple of Fame. With his loss comes grief to a large circle of admirers and followers, with whom we heartily sympathize. The particulars of his death (7) are not to hand; in fact, such a thing as confiding statements now rampant that it would not be a great surprise to me if I found that the Major was yet alive and once more at the head of his troops. Next week will certainly bring definite news which I can assure my readers, is anxiously awaited.

If Major Southall is still in the land of the living, and has successfully eluded the grasp of his persecutors, my oh, my, what a rare old time we're going to have! Just think of it. Three provinces neck and neck for supremacy! Not a particle of advantage yet noticeable. Arab, Mag and Star in a dead heat. Hundreds of onlookers and partisans wild with excitement. The steeds fairly flying over the ground, while Ernest Enterprise is beset with queries from all sides as to who's the winner. My, what a treat to be alive in such days as these!

I should like to recommend to the P. O.'s the undermentioned quotations from the classics: "The paths of glory lead but to the grave."

BRIGADIER GASKIN.—"Dieu et mon droit." (With apologies to Bluff King Hal.)

MAJOR HARGRAVE.—"Coming events cast their shadows before."

MAJOR PICKERING.—"I'll send a vaster total than has been." (With apologies to the new postage stamp.)

"It never rains but it pours." We are also treated this week to a double beat between the Pacific and North-West Provinces. Hurrah, my hearties! Fight it out among yourselves. The whole country has its eyes upon you. We want to know quick who's the victor.

ST. GEORGE'S.—We are all praying for victory. The weather is very warm at present; nevertheless, the meetings are all well attended. Deep conviction. We have had several good conversations lately.—R. S. C. C.

LETHBRIDGE.—Since the last report appeared in our Cry God has wonderfully blessed us. On Sunday the light of heaven shone forth in all its beauty, when one young man, who for months has been a rebel ascendant at our meetings, stepped out of nature's darkness to a life of happiness. There was also one brother out for sanctification. The soldiers' meetings, together with the holiness, are proving a great blessing to all. Attendances at meetings are still up to the standard.—Wm. Farrow, R. C.

NORTH SYDNEY, C. B.—Thank God for salvation! A terrible sinner saved for the first time. Cried aloud to God for mercy. Shock and awe to our long time and then laid hold by faith. We danced for joy. Says his wife has had to take a child under each arm and run for her life. Another time had to have him locked up. Thank God the devil has gone out. Hallelujah!—M. Gede.

VANCOUVER, B. C.—Since last report there has been a little change in the program. Ensign Cummins and wife have gone to another part of the battle-field and Capt. Duthie has taken charge. Adjt. and Mrs. Patterson, of the Shelter, after having had a few weeks of much-needed rest, have returned, looking all the better for the same; but, best of all, we have been enabled to rejoice over another soul. Vancouver, I think I am safe in saying, affords a beautiful opportunity for soul-saving. Large crowds gather around our open-air meetings, and we nearly always get a good crowd in our hall.—B. Norman, R. C.

Seventy in Company.

MORTON'S HARBOR.—Some time has elapsed since this corps was last reported, and perhaps some of our neighbors are beginning to imagine that we are sleeping, or on furlough, but this is not so. The work of God is already outbreathing on in the following manner: A day-school for the children with a very good number of scholars. Sunday-school with an attendance of 70 at company meetings, including outpost, an enrolment of eight Seniors on Sunday afternoon. The E. F. effort is sure to be a success. This corps. Our soldiers are full of life and joy.—F. Howell, Capt. G. Sparks, Lieut.

Skaguay Visited by an Earthquake.

We have been praying for a considerable time for the Lord to shake this place, and to some extent He has answered our prayers, although not, perhaps, in the way we expected. Sunday afternoon, whilst in the midst of our three-and-a-half meeting, the building started to move; it was quite quiet at first, but it increased until the floor heaved, and the building swayed, so that it made one feel as if they were on a steamboat rolling in the sea. It only lasted for a few seconds, but sufficiently long enough to make many run out of the buildings, etc., to see what was wrong, and to scare some in the meeting. I must confess it made me feel funny, not too unlike sickness, and it did wonder poor sinners trembled. "Who can abide the fierceness of His anger?"

Whether this had anything to do with it or not I cannot say, but we had an exceptionally blessed day on Sunday. God came near in the afternoon meeting, and at night as we were preparing to go out on the march, we were surprised by a troupe of Christians, of different denominations, under the leadership of the Peniel sisters, who desired to come on the march with us, so after a word of prayer in the hall, we formed into line outside fifteen in all, and away we went with conviction and courage. It reminded one of the early days of the Army. After a short march we formed an open-air. The large march attracted a big crowd, so as soon as we stopped they warmly blessed us on Sunday. ### His Blood Makes Me Whiter than Snow

Tunes.—Where do you journey, my brother? The upline to glory is clear.

1 I'm still marching onward to Glory
And lean on God's almighty arm;
The light of His face is before me,
His wing shields me safe from all harm.

Though often through danger I journey
And tempests around me may blow,
There's naught on this earth that can harm me,
His Blood makes me whiter than snow.

Chorus.

His Blood makes me whiter than snow,
His Blood makes me whiter than snow,
All glory and praise be to Jesus,
His Blood makes me whiter than snow.

Sometimes those I've trusted deceive me,
But Jesus is never untrue.

Though all other help should forsake me,
His promise will carry me through.

If hidden to me is the future,
Not a doubt or a fear will I know,
My way every hour does grow brighter,
His Blood makes me whiter than snow.

I'll trust till I stand at death's river,
And hear from His lips the "Well done!"

And enter the home where they never have need of the light of the sun.
I'll join in the great swelling chorus
That all the redeemed ones shall know.

All glory and praise be to Jesus,
His Blood makes me whiter than snow.

W. Rieble, Tilsonburg.

Washed in the Blood.

Tune.—Precious Name.

2 Oh, the precious Blood of Jesus,
Flows a Fountain deep and wide;
From all sin His Blood will cleanse us,
When we in the Lord abide.

Chorus.

Precious Blood, precious Blood,
Shed from sin to set us free;
Precious Blood, precious Blood,
Even now it cleanseth me.

From the past He fully saves us,
And doth wash us in His Blood;
Oh, the wondrous peace He gives us,
Oh, the joy of trusting God.

In the precious Blood of Jesus,
Thou may'st wash thy guilt away;
In His love He waits to bless thee,
Only trust Him and obey.
Ned, Bear River.

Altogether.

Tune.—Over Jordan (B.J. 17).

3 We're a happy, daring band,
Marching at our King's command,
'Neath the Blood-and-Fire we stand,
Altogether.
Chad in Gospel armor strong,
Full salvation is our song,
As we push the war along, altogether.

Chorus

Altogether, altogether,
With the sword of God in hand,
Marching on at His command,
Altogether, altogether,
'Neath the Blood-and-Fire we stand,
Altogether.

Jesus is our dearest Friend,
In His cause we will contend,
Till our arms shall bleed, altogether.
Nothing can our ranks divide,
While the King is on our side,
Israel cannot be defied, altogether.

Though the foe be great and strong
Of the mighty giant's throng,

Right shall triumph over wrong, altogether.

From the cross the stones we'll bring,
For the Hallelujah Sing,
And we'll sing the giant king, altogether.

With the sin-destroying aim,
Our promotion we will gain,
In the Kingdom we shall reign, altogether.

With the warriors gone before,
On the bright eternal shore,
We will tell the story o'er, altogether.

Calvary's Purchase.

Tune.—From every stain made clean (B.J. 31).

4 In dark Gethsemane
Bowed 'neath a load of care,
In bloody sweat and agony
Christ poured His soul in prayer;
'Oh, Father, if Thou wilt,
Remove this cup from Me!
Oh, must I die, for human guilt,
On dreadful Calvary?"

The sacrifice was made,
The victory achieved,
A path to righteousness was made,
Our deathless souls retrieved.
The darkness rolled away,
Hell's armies fled in fear,
Jesus victorious in the fray,
Subduing everywhere.

With garments dyed in blood,
He leads the fiery host;
Salvation spread; as a flood—
Jesus our strength and boast.
Oh, conquering Lamb, supreme,
We own Thy sovereign way,
Thy love, so mighty to redeem,
Has snatched from hell the prey.
S. S. M.

How Will You Do?

Tune.—How will you do? (B.B. 62).

5 When you come to Jordan's flood,
How will you do?
You who now condemn your God,

How will you do?
Death will be a solemn day!
When the soul is forced away,
It will be too late to pray.
How will you do?

You who laugh, and scorn, and sneer,
How will you do?
When in Jordan you appear,
How will you do?
Can you then late to terrors brave,
Say you have no soul to save,
When you sink beneath the wave,
How will you do?

When you have been turned aside—
How will you do?
Wither will you see to hide?
How will you do?
Conscience will in terror rise,
And the worm that never dies,
When you sink no more to rise,
How will you do?

The Backslider's Lament.

Tune.—Whiter than the snow (B. J. 12, 2 and 204, 2).

6 Mourful is the path that I tread,
For the woes of sin I must face;
Christ as my Judge now I dread,
All my trifling mock'd at His grace.

There I, can I break from my bonds?
Galling, light and grim do they grow;
"Nothing, fool!" the devil responds,
"Can e'er make thee whiter than snow!"

Chorus.

Whiter than the snow, etc.

Bitter the awakening has proved,
Promised joy of sin proves a lie,
All the evil things I have lov'd,
Still my aching soul as I cry,
"Too late!" Satan's message sounds deep;

Heaven's ringing "To the Fountain go,
Trusting in the Mighty to keep,
Then thou shalt be whiter than snow."
